As a leader, I believe in bringing a community together to share leadership in many different avenues. In a quote from Tom Peters, he states that "leaders don't create followers, they create more leaders." In a school community, this starts at the top in working with others to develop their leadership in every position and level of school.

Educational Leadership Philosophy - George Couros

A leader's clear vision will provide a direction, but without a set of values educational leaders will struggle to get teachers, parents, and students to follow him or her in that vision. One of the chief values people expect from leaders is fairness. School stakeholders like a leader who is fair in every aspect of their job.
